

Custom Surveys and Benchmarking

Altman Weil conducts custom benchmarking projects for law firms, law departments, legal vendors and law-related associations. With over thirty years of experience in survey analysis of the legal industry, we have the know-how to ask the right questions, the reputation and credibility required to gather sensitive data, and the expertise to put the results in a meaningful context.

Our staff of trained analysts and research experts designs survey instruments, collects and tabulates data, performs statistical analysis, and provides detailed reports of findings in these areas:

- Industry Specific Surveys: We can help corporate law departments to develop compensation and performance benchmarks in their specific industry.
- Issue Specific Surveys: We work with organizations to explore areas of critical importance to their business operations.
- Client Satisfaction Surveys: Altman Weil is the leading provider of client satisfaction surveys for law firms and law departments, having surveyed over 150,000 business and individual clients over the last three decades.
- Market research: We design and execute research projects for individual organizations to better understand their competition, regional trends, current client base and the market forces affecting their success.

How You Benefit:

You will develop new insight on your industry, business operations, clients and marketplace that can translate into a powerful, focused success strategy for your organization.

See why Altman Weil is the leader in legal consulting. Visit www.altmanweil.com or call (610) 886-2000 to learn more about our services.